

Fishing Industry and Small Boat Training

General Capability

The Offshore Safety and Survival Centre (OSSC) as part of the Marine Institute, Canada's largest and most comprehensive marine training institution, has a long and successful history of delivering safety, survival and emergency response training to the fishing industry and small boat operators.

The OSSC is able to deliver training at one of its well-equipped facilities in St. John's or Stephenville or deliver training directly in your community.

Training Courses

The OSSC is able to deliver a full spectrum of standard courses to the fishing industry and small boat operators meeting Canadian standards in the following areas:

- Personal Safety and Survival
- Survival Craft Operations
- Firefighting
- Fast Rescue Boats and Rescue Boats
- Emergency Organization and Response
- Marine Environmental Response
- Medical Incident Response

The OSSC can design courses to meet your particular needs or specific environmental or legislative requirements in your area of operations.

Accreditation

The OSSC is recognized as a training provider by Transport Canada. Courses delivered to the fishing industry and small boat operators meet the requirements of Transport Canada and the Newfoundland and Labrador Department of Human Resources, Labour and Employment, as applicable.
